THE X-RAY
1930

PUBLISHED ANNUALLY
BY THE STUDENTS
OF THE
MEDICAL COLLEGE OF VIRGINIA
RICHMOND, VIRGINIA
“Be not the last by whom the new is tried
Nor yet the first to cast the old aside.”

This is the thot that finds expression in the

1930 X-RAY

The decorative theme is based upon the ancient superstitions of the Indian Medicine Man. The altered position of the senior panel bears out the Indian idea such as is found on the old totem poles in the densely populated Indian areas of North America. The lack of groundless eulogy associated with the photographs leaves, like the totem poles, the interpretation in the uninscribed pictures.

In the sections of Organizations and Athletics your attention is called to the position of the groups, which facilitates the reading of the annual.

These changes have been arrived at after much consideration and represent the choice of the classes, not the individual. The admirable features of this book, if such there be, are the result of class co-operation, and the credit and praise go to these our graduates.

The work was done under this direction as mechanical labor by THE STAFF.

To Mother

Since I have learned so much about you, Mother,—
Of what you’ve borne and what you’ve dreamed I’d be,
And what it cost your heart, and soul, and body
Just to be the Mother-Heart to me—
My heart fills up with Love and true Devotion
That ne’er can pay to you the debt I owe,
But let this little book just say to others
That, "I, for whom you’ve suffered, love you so."

The President's Letter

THERE is satisfaction noting the fine efforts yearly to produce an X-Ray which better reflects the activities, the spirit, and ideals of the college. The high standards already set challenge the staff so effectively that the end result is another better book, although this may have seemed impossible. All of us are debtors to the staff for such able work.

A developing institution has many needs. With us, plans for the next period of years call for buildings which will cost upwards of two million dollars, and, of course, call for larger resources for maintenance.

Our next building will likely be the library. Then perhaps the outpatient department and the laboratories for chemistry, bacteriology, and pathology; a nurses' home for the St. Philip Hospital School; a new hospital for the white patients, built a unit at a time perhaps; a dental building; an auditorium; and a gymnasium. Somewhere in the scheme there should be a place for one or more dormitories.

The exact order of this construction work cannot be exactly forecast and besides when it is all done there will likely be few more students here than at present, for emphasis must be upon quality rather than quantity. Just how this program is to be financed, and how other necessary funds are to be secured is problematical. There are funds in sight, however, but even larger sums must be forthcoming.

In all this scheme of things, each one of us can have a part—in ways which I shall want to explain from time to time. Health services for which we prepare are so fundamental that it should not be difficult to convince individuals as well as the state of the opportunities to invest here, provided we plan and work unitedly. All of us can cultivate good friends for the institution.

Sincerely yours,

W. T. SANGER, President.

The Doctor’s There

When in the cottage blessed with Love’s sweet store
A babe is born and o’er the rustic door
Is hung the crown of Motherhood, and fair
Is all within—the Doctor’s there.

When ’neath the pall of mystic Death’s weird spell
A mother’s heart is broken by the knell
Of all that’s dear, and on the stair
No baby feet—the Doctor’s there.

When virtue flees and breath of ruthless lust
Eats into the soul as does the gnawing rust,
When no one else with her the shame will share,
With mother’s touch—the Doctor’s there.

Where blossoms Life’s sweet bud at blush of day,
Where breath of withered rose at eve-tide steals away
On the south wind—in joy and care,
An uncrowned King—the Doctor’s there.

HISTORY

STRICTLY SPEAKING, we, the class of 1930, have no history as yet. By this statement is meant that our four years at M. C. V. constitute merely a formal introduction to the study of medicine. Our real history will be written fifteen or twenty years from now, in the record of the successes, (and failures), of each individual man graduating in our class. However, having reached the end of our senior year, we have been ordered to write a "Class History" so History it shall be. Your scribe, nevertheless, will make an honest endeavor to break away from the stereotyped form of "Class History" so prevalent in all annuals and in the following lines we shall try not to be guilty of the very things which we have condemned, (re-stereotyped histories).

Our history is made up in a great part of hard work. Humanly, we like to be the best, but for the sake of the common end towards which we all strive, (to alleviate, as we say, the ills to which the human flesh is heir), we hope that those who follow may surpass us. However, they had better get a running start. As fledglings freshies we thought we were gaud; as sophisticated sophs we knew it; as judicious juniors we boasted it; and now, as "satisfied" seniors, our belief has become a little ataxic.

When we start writing about our school and our faculty, we grope in vain for a happy combination of words with which to set our thoughts on paper. In this "hard-boiled" age, sentimentality is deemed a "cardinal sin." It is considered the "smart thing" by many, never to wax affectionate or enthusiastic about anybody or anything. We are going to be old-fashioned enough to say things that may be branded as "sentimental" and "hokum." We firmly believe that although our individual scholastic records are of vital importance, yet two ties much stronger than scholarship bind us to our Alma Mater; ties that are deeper and more coherent than grades. These bonds are friendship for our classmates, and love and admiration for our school and faculty. We know that various men of our faculty have long since been held as idols by our students, as models to be followed, as examples of the "perfect doctor," and that these same students have firmly resolved to emulate them in every manner, both as doctors, and as men. We sincerely believe that our friendships here have made our lives holier and richer. In the future, amidst the busy rush of life, if we look back on our undergraduate days, the impressions of a certain quiz or examination will not be remembered, but we will recall friendships that we have cherished during these days, friendships that have been strengthened as we progressed together through our medical course of study.

We sincerely feel that M. C. V. stands on the threshold of mighty achievements. The future is rich in promises. With increased financial support practically assured, we know that it is only a question of a few years before M. C. V. will become known far and wide, in our program of development. Let our keynote to progress be "Men—not buildings; quality—not quantity." We hope that Fortune may smile upon us in the years to come to the extent that we may be able to help M. C. V. in a concrete financial way in her program of expansion. This is the least we can do towards trying to repay the great debt that we owe her.

But to conclude, our history is written in the future, in the hopes and aspirations for the years that lie ahead of us. Let us conduct our lives in such a manner that some day our faculty and our school shall be proud of us, just as we are now proud of them.

HISTORY

HISTORY usually moves in cycles, but for some unknown reason, the history of the Class of 1930 has broken the cycle. We expected on our return to be in a spacious laboratory far removed from our bothering neighbors, but we found instead that we were still to be confined to the "chattering idiot cage," where we must needs leap from stool to stool, dig in the plaster and dirt, and listen to the wily jibes of our fellow inmates. The lab was likened to a pig sty, but that comparison was mild. Even the solace of a friendly cigarette was denied us.

However, there were compensations. A renovated infirmary and reorganized and enlarged infirmary staff gave us a better opportunity to wear occlusal rests on bicuspid, why the cervical margins must be trimmed and why the inlay did not fit.

The first break that came our way was the National Convention at Washington. All the Scotchmen were there en masse with their suitcases. Since then, the sale of tooth paste and mouth washes in Richmond has almost ceased, and for several weeks, some members of the class displayed symptoms of paralyzed arms and strained backs.

After the Convention, we worked largely on partials. A movement was started to bring up sailors from Norfolk to swear while we bent clasps. This movement was dropped when the janitor informed us that he learned a new cuss word every time he came into the lab.

And now that the course draws to a close, after having spent our four years struggling over margins, we do not feel the ecstacy which we thought would be ours. We are reluctant to part. To our instructors and friends who have so patiently helped us, we tender our thanks and sincerest appreciation of their efforts. And now, we go—not like Jason in search of the golden fleece, but in search of "that happy medium which lies between the two extremes."

HISTORY

NOW, as we are nearing the close of our student life, we are having a glimpse of what our chosen life work means. We have not traveled over an easy path; so, armoring ourselves with grim determination, one victory being near, we go out ready to meet the battle.

We are at the close of our school life’s door and standing on the threshold of a door of a much larger field; we feel that though we have not made an unusual record for ourselves that some of our number will place honor upon our class and our school.

Three years ago we entered the Medical College of Virginia as “probs” in the nursing school. From the North, South, East and West we came, with the high hopes of youth. Having the distinction of being the largest class in school, we felt that we were very important and indispensable. We were at first very indignant at the glares and criticisms made toward us, but then we came to realize that we were being singled out good, bad, or just being.

Slowly the months went by, some of us falling by the wayside and others giving up what we thought was our high calling. Finally the day came for us to don our caps and bibs. We then began to realize the struggle before us. Each month brought us deeper into our work and each new problem fascinated us and made us more eager to work.

Our history has not been uneventful. We started hazing of nurses and even attempted to compete with Richmond’s “debs” in being nice girls, some say we succeeded. We have a new nurse’s home which has that appealing home-like atmosphere which brings the male species from far and wide to bask in the contentment of our fireside, and last, but not least, we are being so completely changed in routine that we have hopes of making our hospital the greatest south of Baltimore.
A Nurse

To be a nurse is to walk with God,
Along the paths that our Master trod;
To soothe the aching of human pain,
To faithfully serve for little gain;
To lovingly do the kindly deeds,
A cup of water to those in need.
A tender hand on a fevered brow,
A word of cheer to the living now;
To teach the soul, through its body's woe,
Ah, that is the way that Jesus would go;
Oh, white capped girls, so noble, so true,
Our Great Physician's working through you.

The Stethoscope Song

Oliver Wendell Holmes

There was a young man in Boston town,
He bought him a stethoscope, nice and new,
All mounted and finished and polished down,
With an ivory cap and a stopper, too.

It happened a spider within did crawl,
And spun him a web of ample size,
Wherein there chanced one day to fall
A couple of very imprudent flies.

The first was a bottle-fly, big and blue—
The second was smaller, and thin and long;
So there was a concert between the two
Like an octave flute and a tavern gong.

Now, being from Paris but recently,
This fine young man would show his skill;
And so they gave him, his hand to try,
A hospital patient, extremely ill.

Some said that his liver was short of bile,
And some that his heart was oversize,
While some kept arguing, all the while,
He was crammed with tubercles up to his eyes.

This fine young man then up stepped he,
And all the doctors made a pause.
Said he, The man must die, you see,
By the fifty-seventh of Louis' laws.

But since the case is a desperate one
To explore his chest it may be well;
For if he should die and it were not done
You know the autopsy would not tell.

Then out his stethoscope he took
And on it placed his curious ear.
Mon Dieu! said he, with a knowing look,
Why, here is a sound that's mighty queer!

The sound is very clear—
Amphoric buzzing, as I'm alive!
Five doctors took their turn to hear;
Amphoric buzzing, said all the five.

There's empyema, beyond a doubt;
We'll plunge a trocar in his side.
The diagnosis was made out—
They tapped the patient; so he died.

Now such as hate new-fashioned toys
Began to look extremely glum;
They said that rattles were made for boys,
And vowed that his buzzing was all a hum.

There was an old lady had long been sick,
And what was the matter none did know;
Her pulse was slow, though her tongue was quick;
To her this knowing youth must go.
So there the nice old lady sat,
With phials and boxes all in a row;
She asked the young doctor what he was at,
To thump her and tumble her ruffles so.

Now, when the stethoscope came out,
The flies began to buzz and whiz.
Oh, ho! the matter is clear, no doubt—
An aneurism there plainly is.

The bruit de rape and the bruit de scie
And the bruit de diable are all combined;
Now happy Bouillaud would be
If he a case like this could find!

Now, when the neighboring doctors found
A case so rare had been described,
They every day her ribs did pound
In squads of twenty; so she died.

Then six young damsels, slight and frail,
Received this kind young doctor's cares;
They all were getting slim and pale
And short of breath on mounting stairs.

They all made rhymes with "sighs" and "skies,"
And loathed their puddings and buttered rolls,
And dictated, much to their friends' surprise,
On pickles and pencils and chalk and coals.

So fast their little hearts did bound,
The frightened insects buzzed the more;
So over all their chest he found
The rale siffiant and the rale sonore.

He shook his head. "There's grave disease—
I greatly fear you all must die;
A slight post-mortem, if you please,
Surviving friends would gratify."

The six young damsels wept aloud,
Which so prevailed on six young men
That each his honest love avowed,
Whereat they all got well again.

This poor young man was aghast;
The price of stethoscopes came down;
And so he was reduced at last
To practice in a country town.

The doctors, being very sore,
A stethoscope they did devise
That had a rammer to clear the bore,
With a knob at the end to kill the flies.

Now, use your ears, all you that can,
But don't forget to mind your eyes,
Or you may be cheated, like this young man,
By a couple of silly, abnormal flies.

Junior Class in Medicine

HISTORY

THE JUNIOR MEDICAL CLASS resumed its labors in September with an enthusiasm inspiring in its intensity, yet faintly reminiscent of former years, similarly characterized by an early but transitory enthusiasm. Strangely enough, our eagerness for medical knowledge proved durable and weathered the balmy, lazy days of spring as successfully as it had the cold, stormy days of winter. And why not? As several of our orators informed us at class meetings for the consideration of a too flexible exam schedule: we were no longer prep-school boys, but had the duties and responsibilities of men. Rather startled by this quaint theory, we decided by a majority vote to allow the faculty a hand in determining our obligations with regard to lectures and exams. The faculty, a little disturbed by our unexpected circumspection with respect to them, and little suspecting our new point of view, failed to follow up their advantage. Indeed, to this day, a scheduled exam remains one which, as far as its appearance on the fated day goes, rests in the laps of the gods.

With the above mentioned change in our outlook came another equally as important. Gradually, almost imperceptibly, each one of us acquired those little mannerisms which, when added together, gave that indefinable something called bed-side manner. A bed-side manner is to a doctor what a bat is to a belfry, or holes to Swiss cheese. Without the one the other is impossible. Therefore its final acquisition, as it may readily be appreciated, marked a red-letter day, following our usual custom of being continually in the red.

Long hours spent in delivering babies in all conceivable positions marred somewhat our faith in the omnipotence of the bed-side manner. Gallons of midnight oil burned in the effort to determine which diseases were not complicated by nausea and vomiting—these were likewise oxidized with the same result. However, our faith, simple though it was, conquered in the end, and today it is heartening to observe with what facility we don and doff personalities as occasion necessitates.

We think we know more medicine than most Seniors are given credit for knowing, yet we shall next year also be Seniors, and perhaps our somewhat rosette conception of our abilities lies more in a deficient knowledge of the gaps in our training than in any positive virtues of our own. We, therefore, await the Senior year with a cockiness well restrained, and so far fairly inoffensively directed.

HISTORY

Strange, is it not? that of the myriads who
Before us pass'd the door of Knowledge thru,
Not one returns to tell us of the road
Which to discover we must travel too.

The Rubaiyat.

Summer quickly gone and then a day or two of back-slapping and hand-haking with other up-and-coming D.D.S.'s (Dumb Dental Students, some say).

With startling abruptness we found familiar faces missing as the new school year began. The roll call is shorter now, but in our memory will always linger the faces of those who left for this or that reason.

JUNIORS, that magic world attained at last. No more awkward Freshmen, or "just the Sophomores." Then came our white coats and with them our professional air of superiority and knowledge, and no doubt in our minds that we were worthy followers of Eddie Keels and Black. But little did we know what was to come. Like lambs being led to the slaughter, we were sent to the infirmary to scale and plug, to plug and scale.

Scaling. One of those rare thrills of a dental student, until after several hours of endeavor we proudly display our efforts to an instructor only to have him inform us to dismiss the patient and have him come back at a later date for "some real heavy scaling," not to mention the tone in which it is said.

Laboratory, and a chance to put into practice the theories taught us. What matter if we solder a pontic backward? It only serves as an inspiration for one of our classmates to write a song, "I thought that I was right but I was wrong."

With amazement, we found that sinking a bur into a patient's tooth was not quite so easy as cutting away pseudo-decay in plaster teeth. Is it necessary to mention the number of times we have paused in our work, after hours of grinding and drilling on a tooth, and consider the possibility of advising our patient to go and see a dentist?

However, let us not carry our pessimism too far. In all, we feel that we have made considerable progress in our chosen field. Most of us have even reached the advanced stage where we can scale the teeth instead of the gum tissue, or read a paper to our classmates and be rewarded with hand-clapping instead of the usual M. C. V. cheer.

HISTORY

"No man is born into the World, whose work is not born with him."

WITH a keen desire and a determined will, we, as youngsters fresh from school, entered our careers as probationers in the fall of 1928 at the Medical College of Virginia. "Green as grass, dumb as Dora," we stumbled and plowed through theory. As nurses we were not worth two cents, as the saying goes, but where there is life there is hope and we continued to hope. Five long months we grew together, pulled together and slaved together. The anguish of it all was terrible and even the good times at Cabaniss Hall did not lessen it any. Cheer up! Joy comes to those who wait and the sun did not rise and set many more days before our senior sisters bestowed upon us "Our crown of glory and shields of white." We did, indeed, feel like Sir Galahad, for we had partly seen the vision.

We have continued to travel; and, step by step, we have at last reached that rank of "Junior-hood." The path is narrow and steep ahead of us, but each stumbling-stone is one step nearer that height, that goal—Seniordom.

"She was a friend if e'er there was one; Tho' gone, her friendship lingers on." Pledging our loyalty, we welcome to our circle the new Dean.

HISTORY

TRUE AMBITION is not merely a desire but is a desire coupled with the willingness to expend energy in order to attain the desired end. Still embryonic in functional ability, but not as prenatal as in our Freshman period, with an added enthusiasm after entering the portals of Medicine which we hope will never end, we continue on the upward path to that highest goal.

Although in our sublime ignorance we have felt that some of the material we imbibed was superfluous to our success as Physicians, as the year draws to an end each subject takes its place in the picture to make a composite whole in which there is no discord.

The uniqueness of this Sophomore Class is its realization that as a Class it is no better than any of the second year classes of bygone years. We do believe in the possibility of there being an Osler, Pasteur or Brown-Sequard in our midst. It is at least much better to desire to reach the seats of the mighty by dint of hard work than to feel that great scientists were born great.

A history would be inadequate without mention of friendships—those formed by daily proximity with our fellow students and professors. It is one of the greatest assets of any class and we feel that our class is exceptional in having an abundance of camaraderie and good fellowship.

In leaving our second year work there remains one real regret, it is the necessity of taking leave of someone who has always shown a willingness to help us poor, benighted students. His patience and endurance have been remarkable and we feel that he should know that in our future years of work we shall always hold Dr. H. L. Osterud as our guiding light.

HISTORY

THE GOOD SHIP Frosh-Dent, after passing through a ravaging tempest, finally came listing into port at the end of its year’s cruise with a good deal of damage and a great loss in the number to its crew. The “weaker brothers,” about one-fourth of the entire crew, were washed overboard. Before the ship took sail for its second cruise it was worked over, put in perfect condition and rechristened, for better luck, “Soph-Dent.” The crew was of a much higher calibre and consisted of men who were able to survive the grueling test of the previous cruise. Therefore the men started out with renewed courage and hopes flying high. They were prepared to put everything into their work and aimed for big results. With Bob Long at the helm giving moral and spiritual support, the ship was deftly maneuvered over the turbulent waters of Bacteriology, Pharmacology, Metallurgy, Technics, and even explored successfully the heretofore unknown waters of Prosthetics.

This year the Soph-Dents have made their presence conspicuous by their outstanding efforts in extra-curricular activities. With Lawson, Tranyham, Oliver and numerous others taking leading places in the realm of basketball, golf, tennis and baseball, an enviable record was established.

We are proud to have behind us such a history and believe we will begin our annual cruise next year without loss of any of our present crew.

Freshman Class in Medicine

HISTORY

The 1929 Freshman Class in Medicine first came into being on September 17, 1929. At that time we numbered eighty-four. There were eighty-two "Eds" and two "Co-eds." We came from all parts of the country and represented twenty-four different colleges.

So far our history has been brief, but busy. We were introduced to "Mr. Bones" shortly after our entrance into M. C. V. and, of course, caused some staring and twisted necks whenever, in the course of the next two weeks, we appeared on the streets with oddly shaped bundles from which bony ends protruded. Later on, after a day's work at school, we usually had no trouble in getting seats at the movies or on buses or cars. Indeed, we noticed that people rather turned up their noses and moved over (as far as possible) when we approached. But perhaps that was just our imagination.

We've delved into Anatomy, Chemistry, Embryology, Histology, Materia Medica and other subjects. If we remember all that we have been exposed to—well, praises be, there'll be that much that we will not have to learn over again.

And we must not forget the microscopes. We have the honor of being the first class to own its own 'scopes. A good idea, but rather strenuous on the pocketbook! We hope the investment brings in good returns.

Our history would be far from complete if no mention were made of the friendly guidance and inspiration given to us by our friend, Dr. Osterud. We count ourselves lucky in having had him to introduce us to the course that is to be our life work.

Yesterday we were laymen; today we are "embryo-docs"; tomorrow may we be true sons and daughters of our Alma Mater, the Medical College of Virginia!

Freshman Class in Dentistry

HISTORY

THE FRESHMAN CLASS IN DENTISTRY, organized in September, 1929, numbering thirty-seven, came to M. C. V. for the profound purpose of spending four of the best years of their lives in preparation for a greater life work to follow.

No one can realize what a real transformation of one’s life is until he has experienced a freshman course in a professional school. We experienced a new life at every turn. New friends, new environment, new “likker,” etc. But thanks to the upperclassmen, fraternities and faculty, we have finally succeeded in overcoming these difficulties and apply ourselves in such a way that we should be recognized by the outside world, as well as by the Sophomores.

During the year our class has enjoyed many celebrities, from the noble scholars to the men of brawn—the athletes. We shall never forget the smokers, dances, receptions, etc., extended to us by the faculty and fraternities. We realize that without their sacrifices we would have progressed very slowly.

Study and research may be the blood of a college’s existence, but it taxes the heart of human companionship to keep it going.

Last fall we were humbled, along with the Sophs, by the Junior Med basketball team, but, “every dog has his day,” so shall we in turn have our day when we play them again next fall. We as Sophs, they as Seniors. We are here because of our choice and we are backing our school with the truest and peppiest spirit that is in us.

The passing of each crisis proved the dawn of a new day, and now with a full consciousness of what has gone before we are prepared for even greater things.

"He was just a simple mortal
   With a simple ache,
And he took it to the doctor—
   And there he made his big mistake.

"The M. D. banged him and percussed him
   And fluroscoped his heart,
Ascultated and palpated,
   And took him generally apart.

"Then looking very wise, he said,
   Your appendix is to blame,
So you'd better have the surgeon
   Kindly extripate the same.

"So he went shaking to the surgeon,
   Piously muttering a Te Deum,
While the surgeon removed his appendix,
   Including half the peritoneum.

"Then the surgeon, after hacking
   His anatomy to perfection
Said: 'I think perhaps there yet remains
   Another focus of infection.'

"So he sent 'im to the dentist,
   Who extracted every tooth,
Half his jaw bone and his cranium
   And bank account to boot.

"Then they had not finished with 'im—
   For he had some income left,
So the eye man took out both his eyes,
   While the otologist made him deaf.

"Then they removed his adenoids
   And put both tonsils out of use
And finally dosed him with salvarsan
   As an additional excuse.

"Thus he went the round of specialists,
   Harassed and taxed by each physician;
But he thanks the Lord for one thing—
   He missed the obstetrician."

The Revelers

THE REVELERS of the Medical College of Virginia is now in its fifth year of existence. The organization was conceived and brought into being principally through the efforts of a certain student, now known as Dr. Southward.

As in all things alive, growth has taken place and each year some things have been done which have not previously been attempted by the school either as a whole, or through special organization. For the fullest possible development, we, of course, need and feel we have received the hearty co-operation of the student body.

This year the Orchestra is attempting to spread the name of the Medical College of Virginia a little farther than has previously been done through this channel. So far, this branch of the Revelers has supplied music for the Faculty Reception, a dance at the Jefferson Hotel for the Retreat for the Sick, several "Y" suppers, and, of course, the Student Government Assemblies.

The really new portion of the program is that engagements are being booked in several different parts of the state. We have engagements in Norfolk and Newport News and tentative bookings in Lynchburg and Roanoke, not to speak of more in Richmond.

The Dramatic Club is working diligently on a rather clever three-act play, "Adam and Eve," by Guy Bolton and George Middleton. This will be produced some time before Christmas. Our director has some surprises up his sleeve for later in the year. One of these is in the form of a vaudeville show and a few skits.

This year's Quartette has been heard at the Student Government Assemblies and has been received with much enthusiasm. It seems that their negro spirituals are a particular success. At the time of writing there has been very little opportunity for public appearances. However, we have every indication of splendid work.

For what successes we have attained, we wish to thank every member of the Revelers, because it is through their individual efforts that we elaborated on the successes of previous years. We wish also to express here our personal gratitude for the co-operation and assistance of our directors, E. Cotton Rawls, of the Orchestra; Jack Miller, of the Dramatic Club, and H. J. Harris, of the Quartette. We are at the same time deeply indebted to our Faculty Advisory Committee, Dr. Greer Baughman, Mr. W. G. Crockett and Dr. W. T. Sanger, for the aid and encouragement received at all times.

Coach
CHESTER H. CAIN
President Athletic Association
The 1929-30 basketball squad was called for practice in late November by Coach John Todd. The material was fair, but the squad was handicapped by the absence of Daniel, center, and Byrd, forward. These men were unable to play this year.

The first eight men consisted of Oliver, Goodside, Butterworth, L. Todd, Beale, Lawson, Yokley and Lett. Carver, Banks, Meadows, Moore and other men also displayed creditable basketball.

The team started off by dropping “heart-breakers” to U. of R., Randolph-Macon and George Washington University. Then we struck our stride and broke about even in the rest of the games.

A glance at the powerful competition will easily reveal why mere games were not won. The most powerful teams in this and neighboring states were played. These teams all had more time for practice, better facilities, etc., and therefore the M. C. V. boys deserve all the more credit for their good showing.

Coach Todd deserves much credit for his hard and loyal work. He was always giving his best.

As usual we take off our hats to the reserves and junior varsity. Their work was loyal and thankless. The “scrubs” get plenty of hard knocks but no glory. Without them, however, no practice would have been afforded the varsity. The hard work of the junior varsity is much appreciated by us all and they are not forgotten.

Intra-Mural Champions

The Junior Meds won the cup again after successfully turning aside some of the fiercest sort of competition from the other classes in the league. Junior Med representatives were Daniel, Beale, Goodside, Stroupe, Helsabeck, Butterworth and Holmes. The Freshman-Sophomore Dentists were runners-up and though they were eliminated, flashed some classy basketball.

R. S. J.
The basketball season began for the Sawbonnettes the first of November when twenty-four girls responded to the call by Coach Emmerson. Among the candidates reporting were six girls of the last year’s squad who acquitted themselves well last season and a large number of candidates from the freshman students. After a hard period of coaching and practice the coach picked for the varsity squad Lane, Lowery, Allfather, Hill, Hardison, Wilson, Banks, Williams and Headley. Many of the other candidates showed remarkable skill in the different positions.

The schedule this year was a rather difficult one, schools being played that had championship teams who showed the results of long hours of practice. The Sawbonnettes deserve great credit for the showing that they made against these teams of larger caliber. The opposing teams were often forced to use all their skill to overcome the leads piled up by the medico team. The teams played this year were the best that the Sawbonnettes had played in years.

Much praise is due the junior varsity for the assistance which they rendered in whipping the varsity into shape for these games. Without them the good showing of the varsity would not have been possible.
Baseball, 1929

We had a poor season in baseball in 1929. The chief cause was failure to hit in the pinches when hits count. This factor alone caused the boys to drop many close contests, outplaying their opponents most of the game and then taking the short end of the score by failing to “bear down” at crucial moments with runners on the bases.

However, a fine spirit of fight and co-operation was shown by the boys, who seemed to be behind Coach “Bob” Saffelle to a man.

The fact that “Ken” Walden and “Bob” Saffelle were ineligible to play was a real handicap to the team. The hitting of these two men probably would have spelled the difference between a poor season and a successful one.

The schedule attempted was a most difficult one and included some high-class baseball teams.

Especially noteworthy was the all-round work of J. McCall at first base. Butterworth was a consistently reliable and steady man at shortstop and proved his versatility by donning the catcher’s mask when Humphreys, regular catcher, was incapacitated by illness. Duncan, manager, worked hard and was always on the job. The entire squad gave their best at all times.

Prospects are bright for a better season in 1930. There is plenty of new material available.

In addition to these contests, informal matches were held with Country Club of Virginia, Hermitage, Lakeside Club and other local organizations.

Outstanding performers for M. C. V. were Waugh and Kent. In addition to these two men, A. Davis (manager), H. Davis, J. R. Copenhaver, Lawson and Garrard were on the squad.

Prospects seem bright for 1930. Several men have shown promise in the annual fall elimination ladder (intra-mural championships) and with last year’s squad almost intact, we have a good chance of turning out a fast team this season.

Golf

A call for qualifying rounds for a school tournament during the year 1928-29 marked the beginning of this branch of athletics at the Medical College of Virginia. Some twenty or more responded which resulted in several hotly contested matches and uncovered a very formidable array of golfers from which to select a team.

Shortly after the beginning of the present school year, the athletic department staged another school tournament, which is to become an annual affair and in which way members of the golf team will be selected. After a very closely contested match with Traynham, Ralston emerged the victor, winning the gold medal, emblematic of school champion, and the position of number one player on the team. The runner-up, Traynham, will be number two, with Ramey, Humphrey and Ashworth playing the positions three, four and five, respectively.

At the present writing no matches have been played, but arrangements have been completed to meet the teams of William and Mary, University of Virginia, Washington and Lee, Duke University and teams from several of the local country clubs during the coming spring. There has been a considerable display of interest in this last addition to the several varieties of athletics at the Medical College, and members of the team are anxiously awaiting the “approach” of good weather that they may “drive” to the fairways and “pitch” in for some good practice and therefore “sink” all opponents.

Two matches were held with William and Mary (here and there), one with University of Virginia (there) and two with Randolph-Macon (here and there). Next year it is planned to have a much more extensive schedule, with prominent college teams being met both at home and on the road. However, the ice has been broken and a good start towards developing the mat game at M. C. V. has been made. We think that in a couple of years we will have one of the outstanding wrestling teams of the state.

HUMOR
FORMER MEDICAL MEN HAVE BECOME NOTED FINANCIAL WIZARDS

Ed Williams and Frank Ramey Questioned by Senate Investigation Committee.

People who can remember as far back as 1930 will recall two brilliant young men who graduated from M. C. V., as promising medical doctors. The school and associates looked forward to a brilliant future for these men. It is with profound sorrow that we learn of the loss of prestige by these men and their descent from the good will of men of means of this country.

While students, they were financiers of no mean ability, yet their integrity was never questioned. After their graduation they in some way formed a corporation which began to use the money of the unsuspecting public to further their personal gains. Several attempts along these lines were made but not with any degree of success worthy of mention. The men involved were noted dash men in college, so they managed always to beat the sheriff.

Their latest episode involves the Federal Government and we fear for their future raiment and home. Stripes are in vogue this season.

These men have lately been found guilty of having tried to corner the stamp market and Wall Street reports promiscuous selling of two-cent postage stamps at one and a half cents. The Senate sent an investigating committee to question the involved men and it looks as though Atlanta must find two more cots.

These men could have done better, we think, by starving to death as M.D.’s, rather than degrade their profession by bringing in such commercialism.

S. B. Pope Makes
Unique Discovery

Dr. Pope graduated from M. C. V. in ’30 and he is remembered as the fellow who was always cradling about the flies walking around on his bald pate. This was a continuous annoyance to him as a student. Reports come to us now that he has found a way to prevent this nuisance. This is news which will gladly be received by all afflicted with alopecia.

Dr. Pope has discovered that if he wears a hat and keeps his head covered, the flies cannot get a roosting place.

M. C. V. Visited Recently
By Famous Alumnus

Dr. S. S. Freeman returned to M. C. V. and addressed the Student Body recently and in his address he told the students of the thing that moved him most and gave him his start to fame and misfortune. Dr. Freeman is now an eminent gastro-enterologist and a recognized authority on the therapeutic value of Ivory soap. He has just completed his latest research on the oral administration of soap suds and the effects on the production of nausea.

In this research problem Dr. Freeman has motion pictures of himself taken when he was a second-year student in medicine. Showing the technique used in taking soap suds orally and his film also shows the effects of reversed peristalsis due to over indulgence in this form of medication.

Dr. Freeman has persisted all of these years in his attempt to increase his tolerance for Ivory suds. He has now increased his capacity to one and one-half pints, if taken slowly—orally—but it must be well chilled with chipped ice and flavored with a dash of lemon juice.

Corn whiskey can be used in place of the soap suds if no Ivory is available.

Dr. Broaddus Finds Gold

Dr. J. P. Broaddus has just revealed to the world that after long continued drilling and digging, he has at last found gold.

Dr. Broaddus is a miner by vocation and a dentist by chance, and he has labored for a number of years on a cavity in a molar which is the property of one J. R. B. Hutchinson. Dr. Broaddus has used all available tools without results and he has at last perfected a burr drill with which will penetrate any material known.

Just recently, Dr. Broaddus was using this drill in said cavity and he noticed that there were flecks of gold on the burr. He remarked upon his discovery and was quite elated until his patient informed him that his back collar button was gone.

Dr. Broaddus is still at a loss to decide whether the gold was from the collar button or a natural source.

SAM RUCKER MARRIED

Those who can remember Sam Rucker will be surprised to know of his wedding because, as a student, Sam was too busy to bother about the women.

Since his graduation he has been so busy practicing medicine that he has nearly neglected his primary duties.

Old Sam is very much of a family man and he wants a family, so, in order to acquire one easily and without the usual effort and time-consuming way, he has bridged this gulf.

He married a widow with seven children and now he has his family. His haste is either commendable or foolish—you can decide which.

Corner Drug Store Fails

With misty eyes we observed recently that one of the old grinds of M. C. V. was forced to the wall in his business and is thrown upon the cruel world a ruined man.

In a snappy town in this state, a progressive drug store opened some years ago and seemed to do a thriving business. This store was owned and operated by Maurice Hunt, the man who advertised that it was not necessary for his customers to hunt. He worried it in this way: “My Customers Need Not Hunt.” Many people did not comprehend the meaning of this slogan for a long period of time and progress was fabulous. Later the meaning became apparent to some who passed the word around and business fell off and disaster came to roost on the door.

The secret of Maurice’s failure in the drug business was that he made his chicken salad too salty.

RESEARCH EXPERIMENTS ON ALCOHOL POISONING SUCCESSFUL

There has in the past been much discussion and argument concerning the proper treatment of acute alcohol poisoning, but it has remained for a graduate of M. C. V. to discover the correct and reasonable treatment for this condition.

Careful observations have been made over a period of years by Dr. Oppelman of the effects of acute poisoning by over-indulgence in alcohol. The observations so made were that the patients became great depressors of the brain, and were in a state of consciousness commonly known as "passing out." In the face of such a depressor it required a master mind to realize that stimulation was the thing most necessary in treating this lapse.

What is more stimulating than the drug known as caffeine, and what is more pleasing to the taste than a nice cup of tea? These were the questions which "Fuzz" asked himself, and on this basis he began to figure his treatment.

It is common knowledge that in the usual feeble cups of tea there is about a trace of caffeine; but in a clean cup of tea there is a certain amount of caffeine and it requires approximately fifteen grains to get a noticeable reaction. Armed with these figures, Dr. Oppelman began his computations and derived this formula. That twenty cups of tea would contain fifteen grains of caffeine and thus produce the desired reaction.

Being truly scientific to the last word, "Fuzz" tried out his theory on some stray dogs borrowed for the occasion. No one knows where he got the alcohol, but the dogs got "right," then the tea began to boil. "Fuzz" poured, via a stomach tube, twenty cups of tea into each dog, and they all got a reaction. Yep—rigor mortis set in.

At autopsy the theory was advanced that the dogs were drowned.

Brown has run a good race—
He's doctored all over the place.
In life he'll do well,
But for only a spell.
For his big handicap is his face.

Tin Pan Alley Happy;
Suddenly Gets New Recruit

There is a new arrival in Tin Pan Alley, the abode of song writers. This person is a round individual who is bubbling over with mirth, yet he has written the most popular "blues" song that ever swept across the keyboard.

This song writer is "Jack" O'Keefe, who will be remembered as the heavy bass in the Revelers Quartette at M. C. V., back in the good old days. It was right in Richmond that Jack got his start at song writing by praying in terror, as inspiration he began to work on his real masterpiece. The title of his newest hit is "Why Did I Want a D. S. S.?" This is now heard in every dentist office as a means of entertainment for the waiting patients and some men who are in a place of business, and for the operator to work on.

Jack had always had a hope that he could be an alcoholic tenor, but overtraining along this line and the poor quality of Richmond corn changed him from a

Improvised Monte Carlo Successfully Opened

Last summer, at the height of the social season at Virginia Beach, there was added to the attractions a house of gambling. This has at last supplied a long felt need at this summer resort. The fine feature of this newly opened den of iniquity is that the stakes are limited and there is no betting allowed over one cent a point and no person with more than eleven cents can enter the game.

The house is so ruled because the owners have found from experience that such is the safest way to conduct an establishment of this nature. The owners and profit splitters of the newly founded business are "Chesey" Cain and "Ed" Sager. These men gave up two worthless practices in medicine to begin this enterprise because they decided that it was a use for a man in position. The sound of their beloved dominoes, "Chesey" Cain is well remembered as the specialist in shooting sixes, while "Ed" Sager is known as the man who is in no hurry—always saying: "Wait a minute until I make the point."
Pugh Gets Fee Unexpectedly From Patient, Claim

Reward of Long Research on Central Nervous System Lues.

Fiction has at last become fact. Paradoxical as this statement may seem, it is true, and will be found the rest of this article and judge for yourself if you doubt the above sentence.

"Soo" Pugh has received a fee from a patient on whom he has been working for a number of years. "Soo" has labored diligently on this patient ever since he was a junior in medical school and all these years his experimental work has been without success. He has been able to neither kill nor cure this particular individual and the existing condition has gone on quite unaffected by the noble efforts of old "Soo".

This poor patient had been punctured from stem to stern by the ambitious young doctor and had been "shot" full of all manner of drugs and, to speak in plain language, he was quite "fed up" on his treatment. Thus the patient's state of mind was not supremely sublime, so in this extreme of exasperation the patient gave Dr. Pugh a fee to have him stop his experimental work.

The shock or receiving money for his services was so great that "Soo" needed a few minutes to recover from his surprise; he then shouted with gusto, informing all of the world that he had at last received a fee and the sudden change in his outlook on life was so much and so radical that it caused the patient permanent stoppage of the heart and cessation of respiration, with other complications.

Pugh is going to write an account of his experimental work telling us how successful it all was—but the patient died—most unhappily.

Fish Discovered By

Dr. D. Lem Harrell, Jr.

Lake Drummond Site of Great Activity These Days.

Dr. Lem Harrell, the eminent medical biologist, who has done so much night work with a twenty-two inch frog's legs, has, after years of diligent search, discovered a fish in Lake Drummond.

After years of boating on this miserable body of water, the frogologist has managed to drag his eyes away from the moon long enough to observe a dead fish floating belly up in the muddied waters of said swamp hole.

Dr. Harrell, after seeing this sight, has deduced that the poor fish strayed from the nest and got lost in the turbid waters and died of lonesomeness.

Curiously, Lem made his discovery known to one of his neighbors and the entire town of Suffolk is now floating on Lake Drummond in hopes that they, too, can see such an unusual sight as that beheld by him.

Yes, his hair is still absent.

NEW FAMILY CLINIC OPENED IN COUNTRY CORNER NORTH CAROLINA

A new medical center has had its birth in one of the remote parts of North Carolina. This is just the first stepping stone to something which will some day prove to be a great boon to suffering humanity in the lower rural areas of the Old North State. It is expected that this area will soon become a metropolis because of the opening of this clinic, which will surely draw the needy to its protection.

This clinic will serve as a teaching clinic for other physicians who need to learn rural life. The director of this clinic is Dr. Spivey, who has had a great deal of experience in curing his own family of all of the diseases in the book, and his knowledge will thus be invaluable.

When material is scarce Spivey will tell off his experiences and memories of the time when his family was afflicted with some unusual condition.

We know that this clinic is bound to grow, but in which direction, we cannot say.

Took Water By Mistake; Has Violent Attack of Illness

It is with sadness that we record the sad illness of Mr. John Woodville, who lies in the present time in the Calumet House in a severe state of collapse.

Recently Dr. Woodville was at work in his home office. In his usual manner he had his dram of white mule poured in a small beaker sitting upon a bucket near his laboratory sink. His technician was at work in the laboratory, and seeing the dram in its usual place, she moved it to a nearby shelf lest it be tipped over and burn a hole through the floor. In its place she put a similar beaker filled with water for her own use and proceeded about her work of embroidery.

At this time, Dr. Woodville received a phone call notifying him that a patient desired to seek medical knowledge for his own welfare. This news was such an upsetting event that John decided he needed a snort, so he rushed into the laboratory with outstretched hand for the beaker in its customary place. He grabbed the glassware and, holding his nose, breathed in the contents lustily. The usual fiery sting was absent and John opened his eyes in amazement. He then carefully tasted the remaining drop in the beaker and, to his consternation, discovered that he had drunk water.

In hopes that his nose was not damaged, John seized upon the half-gallon jar reposing beside the dusty microscope and for three minutes drank steadily without once pausing for breath. Dr. Woodville then carefully put the jar back in its accustomed place and collapsed on the floor.

It is thought that possibly he will recover, although the indulgence in such a large quantity of water was a profound shock to his system. We hope for his speedy recovery because there is already an over-production of white mule.

Crisp Employs Strategy To Collect Old Crap Debt

Revenues Long Years of Waiting For Two Bits Owed Him By Former Classmate.

On Monday, the thirty-second of March, Doctor Ed Crisp was called on an obstetrical case in the northeast part of the city of Washington. Dr. Crisp was called because of his great knowledge of the use of forceps, thus avoiding maneuvers and stages in labor and incidentally reducing delivery to a pleasure instead of a pain.

While Ed was interviewing his patient, he casually inquired what if any name she was using at present. To his great surprise, she mentioned the name of one of the famous doctor's former classmates. The fury into which Ed was driven was so extreme that he decided he would now collect an old crank and not let the woman walk out.

The unfortunate husband was called in and Ed briefly and concisely informed him that unless the ancient debt were paid, the woman must be marked for life by failure of delivery of her child.

Dr. Crisp's contemporary endeavored to pooh pooh the idea, but Ed opened the poor man's eyes by telling him that Drs. Dosh and Morrissette had developed a process by which they could time and determine a woman's delivery to the second. Possessing this knowledge, Ed threatened to make use of it and thus refuse to tell the woman when she could deliver.

This threat worried the husband greatly and he consented to pay his old gambler debt. Then, of course, the delivery date was set and everything was fine.

This technique on the part of Dr. Crisp may seem rather under-handed to many, but remember two bits is a fair sized drink to a poor, struggling doctor.

New Delivery Room Head At Med Center

New York City, 1940.—The obstetrical service at the Medical Center has now a new director in the delivery room. It is Dr. LaMarr—not Barbara—Nell. She is a graduate of the School of Nursing of the Medical College of Virginia at Richmond, Virginia, "down where the South begins."

While this young lady was a student nurse she specialized in the technique of obstetrical delivery and she is very proficient in the preparation of the patient for the process of labor and its sequelae. She is most admirably fitted for this work because of her vast experience in this field and because of his vivid examples of her presence at many such preparatory events.

One fine feature of this young lady is that she has her own opinions and ideas concerning the use of mercurochrome as an insecticide and antiseptic.
Dr. Orris Gearheart, in his practice of medicine in the unchart ed hills of Kent ucky, has thrown his attention into a re vo lve. At present, it is rumored that the doctor is in danger of having his neck stretched or acquiring a coat of feathers.

Rumor has revealed that Orris has violated one of the time-honored traditions of Kentucky's hills. It is a custom which is most particularly related to obstetrical cases. The beauty of Kentucky's horses and the speed of their women has long been sung to all the world, and it is with great regret that we must write of the manner in which one of these fast women was treated by the local physician, who is none other than Orris Gearheart.

This poor maiden was due to deliver at two Good Morning, and Orris decided he would prefer to have her get it over with the "night before," so that he could get some sleep in the slumber hours. At four in the afternoon, she gave her castor oil and quinine and the girl complained of the peculiar taste. He left instructions and said that he would return at six-thirty for supper and would deliver her after he had eaten. The girl told her hus band about the odd tasting medicine that the doctor had given her. The husband was highly insulted because his wife did not have malaria and thus needed no quinine, and castor oil was quite unnecessary because she was well oiled. The neighbors were informed of this outrageous thing and an armed party started after Dr. Gearheart. Somehow he effected his escape and is still in one piece. It can readily be seen why Orris made this mistake. It was his first delivery in ten years, and he had forgotten the old Kentucky custom of giving the expectant mother whiskey and lots of it, instead of "oil" and more of it.

Miller Clinic In Near Future Danger of a Split

There is much fear expressed in the medical world that the famous Miller Clinic will be dissolved. This will certainly be a blow to many of the people who have so long sought assistance at this institution.

The clinic is headed by graduates of M. C. V.—Ed Miller and Mary Chesson Miller. Yes, of course, they are husband and wife, and naturally Mary is the "head man."

It seems that last week a patient with a questionable condition was admitted to the clinic and Ed had the nerve to dispute Mary's diagnosis. This provoked a professional argument which soon became a family affair and ended in heated words. For the last week, the coffee was black and undrinkable and the bacon was burned every time.

Ed should never have done that because he had a hard enough time getting his Mary—she waited until the last of her senior year to marry him and now he is in danger of losing her. We fear for both of them.

M. C. V. Graduate

The society editor of this paper was shopping for some new ideas in underwear last week in some of the exclusive shops in New York. By the merest chance in the world, she wandered into a very exclusive shop on Fifth Avenue and saw the most enticing sight she ever beheld. Mere nothing in black crepe were very enchanting, but the young lady demonstrating the things was most attractive. Upon engaging this Miss in conversation, our editor discovered that she was a former student at M. C. V., and that she graduated from this school as a nurse in 1930. This young lady got her start when she was a student by an accident which occurred at Cahanus Hall, where she roomed as a student.

When a student there she was a participant in a fire and the excitement she caused while she was running around in her undies in the halls of her dormitory! Her figure was greatly admired by some of the males and the idea occurred to her that nursing was the wrong life work for her natural gifts. Accordingly, she began to utilize those admirably endowed features which were her natural possession and today she is showing the correct thing in feminine undies.

Hugh A. Watson, M.D.,

Has a Novel Wedding

Dr. Hugh Watson, the notorious lazy man, has at last acquired a bride who thinks she can make him exert himself. Mr. Watson met his wife some years ago, but just never could be bothered about courting her because it required so much time and effort. One day last week he hatched to meet her on the street and during the course of conversation he mentioned the possibility of getting married.

Naturally, the young lady was delighted; so plans were made, and she took care of all arrangements.

When the fatal day drew nigh, Dr. Watson realized his indifference towards exertion of any kind and since he was at the opposite end of the city from his future wife, he conceived the idea of being married by proxy. Accordingly, he called his old classmate, Dr. Paul Mcbee, who lived next door to the bride, and told him his plan. Mcbee applauded most heartily, which is an unusual thing for him to do, and offered to be the party of the proxy.

That was just what Watson desired, so the agreement was made.

The wedding day happened, like breakfast does, but Mcbee was still absent.

Six hours afterward, Mcbee arrived and the wedding took place. This speed on the part of Dr. Mcbee is commendable when one considers that he was late for his own birth.

Watson got somewhere on time!

If you doubt the statements depicted above, don't ask us for confirmation.
Here are a few of the Nurses and Supervisors in uniform. Nurses' life is not all a grind, as can be seen from some of these smiles, and it's their smiles that help make the sick well.
A few memories of Carlisle: First the entrance to the camp and last, the Medical College delegation. Notice Ed Sager's white pants in the parade, and the "mess" we got ourselves into three times daily.
Several views attract attention here: Look close and you can find the students, the others are inmates. Yes, those in the lower left corner are students, too. In the Food Hall Above: "Hey, there, your leg is bigger than mine." Please pardon the boys, they are speaking of the chicken.
Just a few of the things that the Medical College is doing for the people of Richmond through its Out Patient Department. About one hundred fifty thousand ambulatory cases are treated this way per year.
And here is a bunch of seniors caught posing just for this page. Take a squint at the trio taken four years ago, and at Clyde Crawford with a girl. "Imagine that!"
We admit that the movie titles do not carry a whole lot of sense, but the snapshots do show a little of the life of our nurses off duty, and in action. Take your choice.
Athletics at the Medical College of Virginia are really laboring under difficulties, such as inadequate time and space for training. Wrestling and basketball are not depicted above.
TO THE LADIES-
Now ain't it the deuce? We'll say it is, but they're all "queens." Funny how so many bathing beauties got together without any water except the showers in Cabinass Hall.
IM FOR CONSERVATISM LETS ALL GET CHEVROLETS AND A CADILLAC FOR BUSINESS PURPOSES; THEN THE STUDENT-BODY WONT HAVE ANY ROOM TO GPIPE. OF COURSE WE MIGHT GET A COUPLE OF FRANKLINS OR NASKS AND ALTERNATE THEM WITH TAXIS.

CHEVROLETS, SEZ YOU! I THINK WE DESERVE AT LEAST CHRYSLERS OR MAYBE BUICKS THEY BOTH HAVE SOME MIGHTY NIFTY LIL SPORT ROADSTERS NOW —

BUT HOW ABOUT NEXT YEARS STAFF? LETS JUST GET FORD COUPS AND HAVE SOMETHING BESIDES BILLS TO PASS ON TO THE 1931 STAFF

75% of All Dental Cabinets in Use

In the U.S.A. are American Dental Cabinets. 3 out of every 4, over 45,000 dentists, are using American Cabinets. Over 10,000 dentists in 1926, 1927, and 1928, have purchased them. 300 Dentists in the Marshall Field Annex Bldg., Chicago are using 450 American Cabinets. 20% of the Dentists in Switzerland also use them. American Cabinets predominate for three reasons: Dollar Value, Eye Value, and Service Value. Quality is the first consideration, and American Cabinets never fear competition with the best the market can produce. Can 45,000 intelligent men be wrong? Don't forget to use the coupon.
